Paragraph Structures

Use the structure below to help you form excellent extended answers to the statements on the next page.

If you see the word 'Christian' or 'Buddhist' in the statement, or if the statement mentions something Christian or Buddhist specific (e.g. Four Noble Truths/Jesus/God), then use THIS structure.

If the statement is general (e.g, religious people should not take part in war), then use THIS structure

Introduction: What does the question mean?
Thesis: What do you think The conclusion will be?
Reason: Give a reason and evidence to support your thesis.
Agree: Try to give two or three more reasons, with evidence, to support your thesis.
Disagree: Try to give two reasons, with evidence, why someone might not agree with your thesis.
Evaluate: Why were you not convinced by the disagree argument?
Conclusion: Was your thesis correct? Summarise your argument.

Some Christians might agree with this statement because ...
Other Christians might disagree with this statement because ...
Non-Christians might say
In my opinion ...
Conclusion ...

REMEMBER: for each section of the structure you should write a full and complete paragraph. This means you should make your point, explain it and evidence it. See your teacher for advice on this.

Statements to respond to:

- The Four Noble Truths are the most important teaching for Buddhists
- Religious believers should not agree with Capital Punishment
- Violent Protest is always wrong
- It is not possible for God to be Omnibenevolent AND Just
- Original Sin is the reason for all suffering
- It is the responsibility of all people to look after the environment
- It is not the job of people to punish criminals
- Reconciliation is the most important thing for Christians to work for
